Speakers

Donald Joseph
Rutgers University

John M. Myers, Esq.
Montgomery, McCracken, et.al.

Moderator

Janice G. Dubler, Esq.
Montgomery, McCracken, et.al.

Don Joseph and John Myers will lead an interactive discussion on the ethical minefield of interviewing employees, including what to say to the employee, how to avoid conflicts down the road, and whether to represent the employee at deposition. The seminar will also address contacting employees of a company when you represent the other side.

Rutgers Law Professor Don Joseph has been teaching professional responsibility, ethics and professionalism since the 1990s. He is a regular moderator and panelist and serves as an expert witness on these issues. For forty years he was connected to the Wolf Block firm.

John Myers practices law at Montgomery McCracken Walker & Rhoads. He is an adjunct professor at Temple and regular instructor on professional responsibility as well as trial and deposition skills. He has been a CLE and NITA instructor since the 1970s. His most recent sub-specialty is obsteporosity. You will judge for yourself whether it takes one to know one.
